The School Building at Langdon Appropriately Dedicated.

INTERESTING OCCASION

The Services Were Under the Auspices of the Northeastern Suburban Citizens' Association. Many Well-Known Washington tans Were Present.

The new public school building at Lang don was dedicated yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Northeastern Suburban Citizens' Association.

The exercises commenced immediately fter the arrival of the 3:25 p. m train from Washington, when Superintendent W. P. Powell, of the public schools; Supervising Principal Patterson, and other speakers, were met by the school children and scorted to the new school building.

On arriving there Past Grand Councillor Thomas P. Moore, of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, conducted a patriotic service, during which a United States flag was raised on the roof of the building amid the strains of patriotic music. With in the building the program was an elaborate one. First came the grand march of the children. After prayer by Rev. J. T. Crowe, of the Church of Our Savior, of Brookland, and St. Barnabas' Mission, of Langdon, Mr. A. M. Gould delivered a fing oration and "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung in chorus.

Following a piano solo by Mrs. Dr. Z. W. Alderman, introductory remarks were made by Mr. J. W. Watson, president of the Northeastern Suburban Citizens' Association. He was followed by Superintendent Poweil. Mr. Poweil referred to the schools of the District of Columbia as being surpassed by no other system, and touched upon the fact of the harmony existing between teachers and pupits, as well as between the schools and families. Supervising Principal W. B. Patterson referred to the progress of the establishing of improved school facilities, spoke of the need of still greater facilities, and congratulated the citizens of the District oncerned in the acquisition of the new school huilding. After a plano solo by Mrs. Dr. Alderman, Dr. A. P. Fardon, of the board of trade, made a spirited address, in which he referred to the Junior Order of United American Mechanics as having been instrumental in establishing the national flag on the schoolbours oughout the country. Legislature after legislature, said Dr. Fardon, "has adopted the schoolhouse not the United States flag fluttering over

Mr. Grant Sexton spoke on the interests of Avalen Heights, and after a piano solo by Miss Alwilda Matlock, the growing needs and interests of Langdon were discussed by Mr. H. S. Sutton.

Dr. Frank T. Howe, representing University Heights, spoke of the necessities requiring remedy at the hands of the Commissioners and Congress. He said that the time was past when it was appropriate to appeal to Congress for schools. "We should demand them. It was a mistake to beg improvements from the Com-missioners and Congress, as they are placed in authority over us, to provide needed facilities."

A plane sole was rendered by Mrs. Dr. Alderman, and the exercises closed with the singing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee' in chorus by the school children.

The new school building is a commodious frame and brick structure, located on a plateau of about two acres in extent, and about 300 feet above tide water. It is near the intersection of Frankfort and Twentieth streets, on the line dividing Winthrop Heights and Langdon. The building is 125 by 70 feet, and rises two stories above the basement. In the basement are two large playrooms, for boys and girls, respectively.

The first floor contains two large school the second story, several large school rooms, with cloak rooms attached. This building is one of the two schoolbouses secured for the northeast section last June, the other being at the corner of Fifth and K streets northeast. The school is intended to accommodate pupils from Langdon, Avalon Heights, Winthrop Heights, Chapman Just as Warm.

(From the Pittsburg Dispatch.) "Oh, I don't know, Capt, Chapman, you ain't so warm," caroled three colored singers on the platform at the old Haymurket, at 2 o'clock this morning. Yes, t was a typical Haymarket scene, fun going as fast and furious as the Tenderloin "Gimme a drink!" shouted a man who had just danced a dizzy polka with a peroxide blonde, "Wat'll you 'ave: Ebe murmured something about "lagh ball." and waiter came a runnin'. "You are under arrest," said the man, dropping his Bowery swagger and assuming a tone of authority. There was a wild scramble, and when the dost cleared away the officer had the two men he wanted, Manager Corey and the waiter. They were held for violating the excise law. The colored minstrels, who abandoned their banios in the scramble, think Chapman is still as warm as he used to be.

A MOTHER KNOWS.

Some Things People Don't Think Of. Just why it is that children at the breakfast table will beg for a little coffee day after day, I am unable to say, except that they have a deeply rooted desire to have what their parents no in the way of food and drink; then I believe they naturally like something but to sip with a spoon; at any rate, the demand is there, and I'm blest | Fischer if it isn't hard to get over, when one has give our young folks coffee to drink; every one knows its effect on children, and it seems almost criminal to set before the innocents something we know will harm

So speaks a thoughtful mother, and to such the grain coffee, Postum, comes as a blessing to solve the vexed question. Dr. H. W. Pierson, "Medical Advance," 6351 Stewart avenue, Chicago, says. "We know of your Postum and are very much ased with it. Decidedly opposed to the use of both ten and coffee,' Postein will pass for coffee with nine out of ten people if they are not warned in advance. It has the deep seal brown of old Java and changes to the rich golden brown of thick Mocha when cream is added. It is made wholly and entirely of pure grains of the field, wheat, etc., such as are intended by the Creator for man's use in this latitude. Postum, the health coffee can be drank as freely as water without any of the ill-effects of coffee, and in a week or ten days' time the old coffee user will note a marked change in his feelings and flesh. It makes red blood in the natural way and agrees with babies or grown people. Made by the Postum Cereal Co., Lim., of Battle Creek, Mich.

Beware of fraudulent imitations of the original Postum Cereal Grain coffee. In Sold by W. H. Zeb, H. P. Beattle and men in the State." "Yes; he's always held appointive offices."—Chicago Journal.

HIS PAPERS NOT FOUND The Naturalization of Ruiz Is N

Wholly Incontestible. Secretary Olney spent an hour in his office yesterday morning assorting his private papers, which were being boxed for transportation to Boston. Senator Sherman, his successor expectant, interrupted him for a few moments to inquire whether anything unusually aggravating had occurred in regard to our relations with Spain, and learned "Nothing, abso

GAY REVELS OF MASKERS

The Germania Maennerchor's Bal Masque at Masonic Temple.

Not Even the Pouring Rain Could Keep the Crowd Away-Many Original Characters.

Mornus was the divinity worshipped at Masonic Temple last night, for it was there the Germania Maennerchor held its anni al masquerade ball. Like all the entertainments given by this popular society, this one was characterized by good manage ment, good nature and good cheer. As a consequence, all that attended, young and old alike, enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content, and vowed and declared that each and every one of the Maennerchor's balls would find them in the push No attempt had been made to decorate thehall, and in this, too, good judgment had been shown, for the motley throng that walked and danced and jumped about furnished a kaleidoscopic picture of the great-est variety of coloring. The guests came early and fast, and by 9 o'clock the hall was filled to its utmost capacity. The strains of the waitz floated on the air, and Momus had Terpsichore for his best girl It did not take long for the spirit of the revels to take possession of the maskers and they whirled along, played pranks of each other and on everybody else within reach shricked, laughed and sang and had the best time imaginable.

It was a thoroughly denocratic multitude, enoring all barriers of rank and station. Knights walked arm in arm with chimney sweeps, and Stephon and Phvilis didn't care a copper whether he was a baker's apprentice or she an Indian squaw. The colred brother was largely in evidence, and so was his sister, for that matter, and they were not one what behind the other races in the attention they claimed. Prominent among these was a group which by a banner carried by its leader, made itself known as "The Black Machinerthor, or ganized befold de wah." They were an elegant aggregation of "cull't gemmen and prize for groups, the second being taken

Two Societies Meet in Honor of Washington's Birthday.

VICE PRESIDENT A GUEST

The Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution Meet Together About the Festive Board Stirring Addresses-Secretary McAdoo a Speaker.

The two patriotic organizations of the city, subordinate to the two national societies, whose members can trace their genealogy in an unbroken line back to the Revolutionary era, closed the observance of Washington's birthday by giving a joint banquet last evening, at Rauscher's, on Connecticut avenue. It was a social reunion, in which over 100 of the members participated.

There were distinguished names on the list of guests, among them that of Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson, Vice President of the United States; Admiral James A. Geer of the United States Navy, Gen. D. S. Stanley of the United States Army, Gen. O. B. Wilcox of the United States Army Dr. J. M. Flint of the United States Navy, Gen. J. C. Breckmridge, United States Army; Gen. Thomas M. Vincent, United States Army; Admiral John G. Walker of the United States Navy; Gen. Rufus Saxton, United States Army; Surgeon General Wyman of the United States Hospital Service, and Major Green Clay Goodlog of the United States Marine Corps Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, and half a hundred or more who are prominent in the civilian fanks.

These were all Sons of the Revolution, whether designated as "American" or otherwise, the only distinction between the two societies being in names by which each is known. They are so nearly allied that they separate only when the individual organizations hold their business foot for organic union, which promises

The guests were assembled at tables about 9 o'clock, and the speaking began at 10, with Gen. J. C. Breckinridge on duty as toastmaster. The selected topics were all of the patriotic type, leading off with "Our Navy" and closing with "Our Patriot The Father of His Country was also remembered in a special way, and "Our -received a bouquet of choice exclics as a tribute to their excellence. After brief remarks by Gen. O. B. Wilcox, past president of the Sons of the American Revolution, Gen. J. C. Freekin ridge, the tonstmaster, was introduced. He was greeted with a hearty round of applause. Gen. Breckinridge referred to the two societies and deftly blended them, his references apparently striking a responsive chord. With a brief introduction, Gen. Breckinridge said the united sons stand ready to again dominate the policy of the American nation. "They cannot ask where we stand. There is but one flag for us," he said. As toastmaster, Gen. Breckinridge then introduced Assistant Secretary McAdoo, whose theme was "Our Navy." He alluded to the struggles of the Navy for recognition, and also to the importance of the naval arm in the equipment of the nation for main taining the national honor. He referred. also, to the fact that at one time Navy had more enemics than friends. A prominent member of Congress once said he would go farther to burn the Navy than to save it.

The assistant secretary attributed the success of the Union cause in the late civil war in large part to the work of the Navy, and predicted that the time would ome when it would receive its just meed of praise. A reference to Admiral Walker brought the members to their feet, and elicited great applause. The speaker referred to the genius of the American mechanic, and said the fact that it had wrought marvels of mechanism which had than it cures. He says. challenged the admiration of the world. The critics of the Navy, he said, are like to a task far beyond its powers, and as a critics in general, the the least they know. If ever the American Navy gets a chance to do its duty, he added, it will be the equal of the best in

At the conclusion of the Secretary's remarks, he was cheered to the echo. Other responses to regular toasts were from Hon. Walter T. Logan, of New York, who spoke to "Our Societies," and from Col. Walter 8, Chase, of Ohio, whose theme was "Our Patriot Sires. In speaking of the two organizations, Mr. Legan referred to the "internecine conflict" between "men sprung from a common glorious ancestry," and expressed the hope of a closer union. He saw in the joint celebration "the harbinger of wiser counsels in the societies and better days

These last two and the imprompto addresses were received with every manifestation of approval. Vice President Stevenson, from whom an address was ex-pected, was obliged to leave early.

A novel feature of the menu was the serving of ice cream in the form of apples. which was passed to the members in receptacies fashioned in the style of a Continental hat. Another unique feature was the serving of cherries from the boughs of miniature trees passed about the tables. The committee in charge of the entertainment was constituted as follows: Henry G. SCHOOL CHILDREN'S MORALS

A bulletin, issued by the General Federa tion of Women's Clubs in Pittsburg, tending to show the low moral standard of youth and business men, has caused much indignation in that city and Allegheny. Prof. Morrow, principal of the Allegheny high school, says: "It appears to me on first impression that the charge of so many pupils and young business men being liars and cheats is greatly overdrawn. My experience with school pupils does not bear it out. I consider that 99 per cent of the scholars in American schools are truthful and their veracity should not be

"There may be more than 1 per cent who are addicted to lying and stealing. These cannot fairly be considered pupils. By their covert acts they are sconer or later detected by committing some act that calls for their expulsion. Another thing that should be considered is that many pupils ranging in age from eight to fifteen tell a little lie to shield a play mate. It is not the spirit to lie out right that prompts them to do it. It is the fact that there is a great deal of honer among young America. The ma-jority of them would consider it a lesse crime to be caught telling a falsehood than to peach on a companion for some triffing breach of rules. The latter would only entail reprimand, but the 'peaching' would provoke the disdain of associates. You were once a schoolboy yourself and know what that means. Nine-tentlis of all lie told by school pupils do not come from the heart, but rather spontaneously. They should not be considered lies in the ful term of the word.

"One thing that has impressed me mo in the coadact of pupils in their home training. Those from families who specially goard their morality usually prov our most trustworthy pupils. Home training invariably shows and from investiga tions I have made I can almost always tel what the training of the child at home has been. In our instruction of children great attention is always paid to developing man liness, womanliness and honor amon them. To a certain extent only can this be eccomplished by the instructors, but their is the proper place for its develop-
